

Case Study

“An academic’s working day doesn’t stop after the teaching contact hours. There’s marking, mentoring younger academics, writing, publishing, applying for research grants, undertaking research projects, committee meetings, dealing with media enquiries – the list goes on. Where am I supposed to find the time to focus on my financial future?”

Professor Les Dawes,

The Key Performers Program delivers for education professionals

Your world is about shaping other people’s futures. As a key performer in this important vocation, everything you do is about imparting your knowledge so that your students have the chance of a better future. You take on this responsibility every day, devoting your time and energy to educating, motivating and supporting others. But what about your responsibility to yourself? Are you devoting enough attention to shaping your own future?

Our wealth.truth approach

You follow a pre-determined curriculum, set structures and an established hierarchy. Your future financial goals and happiness doesn’t have to be confined in the same way.

At Varria, it’s our job to bring the focus back to you. We help you stop and look at things from your point of view, by gaining clarity on your unique goals, position and vision for today and tomorrow. We unlock all the advantages you have at your disposal and then maximise them to create your wealth.truth.

You can achieve a better financial performance as we help you clarify your goals and make expert decisions. This actively managed program lets you optimise and shape your world by showing you just what’s possible.

Your result

We think it’s time to look after you. Varria will impart our expert knowledge, relieving you of the responsibility of being the educator. We’ll protect what you’ve built so far, and uncover opportunities to make your future more desirable. Together, we’ll create the best foundation to achieve your goals and on which to build your happiness. Your wealth.truth.
